Makeup artist Emily Katz is mishpocheh, and I'm sure we'll find out that we're actually related one day. The makeup maven extraordinaire, formerly of LOST and The Nine Lives of Chloe King fame, has landed a new gig as makeup artist for Anger Management, the new show starring Charlie Sheen, Selma Blair and Shawnee Smith on FX. It starts June 28 at 9pm, so tune in! In the meantime, I caught up with Emily in LA recently and found out everything about how she scored this gig to the products she uses on the show. Check out the Q&A below.

Beauty Blogging Junkie: How did you score this gig?

Emily Katz: Gabriel Solana, my dear friend and Charlie Sheen's makeup man for about 20 years asked me to do this with him. I was honored and delighted! We've been wanting to work together again since we did some age makeups for the feature Big Fish in Alabama!

BBJ: What's the experience been like?

EK: Unexpectedly wonderful. The entire cast and crew are terrific, and it's actually been one of the most fun and -busiest-highlights of my career. I'm from the episodic drama world, so a sitcom was a different animal for me, it is hilarious, and just delighted to be a part of it.

BBJ: What skin care products are you using on set?

EK: Big cast--lots of products! To begin with, as you know I am a skincare aficionado. Read that junkie, if you will. So to start with the best canvas possible, I always encourage actresses/actors to investigate skincare that works for them. To that end, we had a corral of products! Jan Marini's skincare line became a big favorite for us, I really noticed transformations in the actresses' skins from her Transformation Cream. Literally within days. And I might add that many of my clients and friends I have introduced it to have had remarkable, visible results.
